

The New Beginning – The Truth According to the Divine Light

It seems there are many questions from many as to how the world is to change and a new beginning to take place for the human race. There are groups who are dividing themselves to get ready for what they see is the way that people are going to live. This information has been fed down to them from many sources and confusion has set in. This is causing hysteria amongst the young and those who are passionate about their cause. Yet hysteria was never the intention. For the only intention is to create a world that is full of love. A world where people will start to come away from the material way of being that has so prominently set in to a more loving and peaceful way of life.

For many life has become one big ball of struggle, stress and strife. People have become disillusioned with life itself and the world in which they live. Yet the world in which they live is a very special place indeed. It is full of so many wonders and beautiful things. Things that so many walk by each day whilst in a hurry to get on with their next task. If people were to take time to see the special world they were in they would not be in such a hurry to see life pass them by. They would be more willing to stop and take time to enjoy everything that they have currently in their path. For no matter how much struggle and strife you are going through in your life there is always something that is beautiful and wonderful that can be appreciated and enjoyed.

Why have people become so lost in the blustery way of living that seems to have overtaken many parts of the world. Why have people lost the ability to appreciate the good things about themselves and the people that are in their lives. Why are people so keen to get rid of those that make them feel uncomfortable in any way to replace them with the next person whom will make them feel uncomfortable as well. When will they see that the person they are uncomfortable with is themselves and this is what is leading them to find difficulty in fitting in with anybody else. Surely most people would agree that it is time for change. That it is time to address the things that are going on in the world and see how they can be improved so that people can go on to live in peace and harmony in the future going forward. For some people life has become so painful that they are constantly taking drugs and caffeine in order to boost them up and keep them from having to face their true emotions. Is this really how they want to live. Do they really want to spend the rest of their lives feeling unsettled and unsure about who they are and why they are so depressed all of the time.

Take a look around you when you are walking down the street. How many people greet you with a smile in an unconditional way with no intention other than to show friendliness and love to a fellow human being. How did the world get to be such a dark and dismal place when it was once so full of light and beauty, for all the souls that are within are all from a source of such light. They are all from a place where there is only laughter, love and joy. What is it about being on this planet, which incidentally is full of beautiful plants and animals, that has created this dark and dismal being. How did it all escalate to a point where most people are dissatisfied with the very person that they are and the lives that they are living. People have been in existence for such little time in the scheme of things and yet they seem to have shifted from the ideal into the abyss.

If the people carry on in this way the planet will just shrivel and fall. Everything will be destroyed by the negative belt that has been formed. The plants and animals will suffocate from the lack of energy that is around for them to enjoy. For what would there be here for them if few people around them enjoy the beauty that they offer. For people are more interested in the money in their accounts and how they can afford the next big item on their list, or the huge exotic holiday that they have always dreamed of rather than what happens in their everyday life. They just accept that they have to work hard for the things that they want with no thought for their happiness. For happiness is something that only comes when they have reached the dream at the end of the end of their hand.

The one that they have been promising to themselves for so long. Yet even then this is not enough for when it is reached there is always something else to plan for, something else that would be even better than what they have just acquired. Why is it never enough to just appreciate every little thing that is given and received. Why is it never enough to have the partner of your dreams. Why is there always someone else who has more that then causes dissatisfaction in yourself. Surely there has to be a limit as to when happiness could be reached rather than the goal posts being constantly moved.

So guess what because of the sheer dissatisfaction and general negativity in this world, something has to change in order to restore the balance. In order to ensure that the world can continue on this planet without everything needing to be destroyed. A change that will bring only happiness and joy to its inhabitants and take away this constant feeling of struggle and strife. A new way of life where people will enjoy all the things that are in their life so that they can appreciate everything they give and receive. So they can smile when a person walks by and appreciate their fellow human beings. So that they can live in peace with each other, whilst each other enjoys the things they say and do. A place where anger and resentment are things of the past and the memories of good things last and last. A world that will be truly enjoyed by all, and people will generally be having a ball.

So change is inevitable if things are to improve but it is down to the inhabitants of the earth as to how much disruption is needed in order to bring about the changes required. Information has been flowing into the planet for some time now passing on a message that things have to change, but for some reason many people are choosing to put their heads in the sand and carry on regardless. So action has now had to be put into force in order to make people take notice. In order to show that it is the time to make the change for change has been calling out from every corners of the earth to bring about this new beginning. For a new beginning will create a feeling of good wealth and good health as everyone begins to see the world and all its beauty. For they will be totally free of all that is negativity and they will then truly see what it is to be free. To be happy to live and to love everything from the ground to above. For the world is here to bring you joy to every girl and every boy. It is here to show you the way to the light away from the things that bring you fright. So instead of thinking there is no where to go, just know that it is time to flow. Time to flow love into this world and hear and see what can be unfurled.

So the truth is what you choose to see as you learn to let yourself be free, for everyone will start to see how easily life could surely be. For at the moment the burden they carry is great, it carries with it a lot of weight, so when they finally let it go free, they will enjoy what they see. For they will no longer live under a veil of doubt, where they feel they have little or nought, to love or to cherish as times are hard, for in fact their life is a facade. For actually their life has yet to begin, as so far they have only been drifting. Drifting along on the storm that has brewed and where many negative thoughts have accrued. So now is the time to jump aboard and feels the waves as they rise wide and broad, for life is about to get better you see, as people truly learn to be free. Learn to be free of their old patterns at last, things that they have drifted into in the past. Instead they will love all that they see including the person they call thee. And as this occurs it will bring in the light and everything in the world will be bright. Everything will start to glow and shine, and everyone will start to feel fine. No one will feel unloved or abused, no one will feel that they are not amused. For they will have learnt to be happy with everything they have and they hold, they will have learnt to be bold. To be bold to be the person they are, and reach out and become a shining star. One that glistens and shines in the dark and will just add another spark. A spark of hope to all those who have yet, to look at their minds and their patterns forget. For it is the old patterns that have been built up in you, that have created the dark cloud that is shrouding you. It is stopping you from being true, true in all you say and do. So now is the time to learn to just be. Now is the time to finally break free. Finally break free of the mould you are in, and start your life as a new beginning.